Tells Some Significant Things in a Recent Interview.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 10. "Grover Cleveland is not a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination" said Hon. Jno. J. Leutz before leaving for his home in Columbus yesterday. "Mr. Cleveland said some significant things in our last interview in New York a short time ago. He assured mele had come to the nge when he appreciated leisure, and that he had a modest and legitimate fear that in the event of his re-election he might not make the record that he did during his administration and besides he dreaded the horrors of a Presidential campaign."

They are about two inches long and are as big around as an ordinary lead pencil. The animal is of a grayish brown color, but is most peculiarly marked by deep red bands, when cross its body, extending clear around diagonally from shoulder banes, which cross its body, extending clear around diagonally from shoulder to hip, crossing each other at the middle of the back and the center of the belly. The fierceness of the insect and the marking on the back have induced the Indians to name it the "Devil's Soldier," and they say that it is undoubtedly the worst fee to man in that whole country, making it almost impossible for any one to go into the interior, for it abounds in such rum jers that no place is free from it, apr its bite is certain death.

Only one instance is known to Indians where a man has been bitten and did not die, and this man was wildly insane ever afterward. The spider makes its home among the rucks, and when anything approaches it rushes boldly out had makes an attack so fiercely that it is althost impossible to escape it. It ing history and works on economic questions. To ticton he does not devote much time, although this branch of literature is by no means boycotted from his attention. He enjoys magazines and each month looks over the articles in the best publications. In this work his daughter is a great assistant to him. She is a great reader, and an intelligent one, since the recommends to her father what magazine articles are worth careful perusal. The tastes in literature of the father and daughter are very similar; he has perfect confidence in her judgment, and it is seldom that her judgment of a piece of liserature is reversed by him. In newspapers Mr. Blaine takes great interest and reads them very carefully. But it must be said that he does not allow himself to be influenced very greatly by their statements pro and con. He says that he has been in public life so long, and he has seen so many changes in the policy of the great papers of the country, that he has begun to lose faith in newspaper utterances, as far as their being a pillar of fire to follow, is concerned. But nevertheless he is a great reader of newspapers, at lis always cordial to open his least to them and tell them of all his plans for the present and future. He takes a very large-number, of papers himself, and always reads. How England and New York papers very carefully.

THE TIRKLIA BELL Where Congress not and Freedom Stung Its starry banner to the breeze. Excitingly its fron tongue All this 'this summer morning sums Our new born liberties.

It told the eriting of the night,
The happy dawn of freedom's day,
And overland there fisshed a light
Of brotherhood and human right.
The end of kingly away. Oh, how the good old bell sang out Of liberty und freedom's birth! From east to west, from north to south The message of its metal mouth Rolled all ground the earth!

It told the birthright of the race, The glory of the brave and free, And pealing from its nacred place it set the whole wide world ablaze With drea ne of liberty.

Alás, it utters now no sound. But yet its cohoes ring sublime. Its resting place is holy ground. Where Froceam stalks in solemn 'round Until the end of time. Influence to sell things,"

"My business here is to sell things,"

I have had the house set on fire repeatedly because some one lighted a lamp in the vicinity of a Canton flainel drapery. I used to be very fond of this sort of goods, but there is nothing 'that would induce me now to put up a yard of it in my house. If you want to understand the occasion of my fears, just takes a bit of the stuff and hold it near the flame of a lamp. The blaze will travel over it faster than a prairie fire. I have sometimes thought I would post ively refuse to sell the goods, but people want them; and I suppose no one would thank me for advice on the subject "—New York Ledger.

Characteristics of Hungarian Women. The Hungarian woman likes to eat well, takes naturally to swimming, dancing, gymnastics, and has not the least objection to being admired. Although not specially inclined to sentimental efforiveness, in one sense of the term, she may, in moments of love and passion, give a profoun ly stirring expression to heremotions; she may clothe her senti-ment in words of enrapturing naivete, ment in words of corapturing naivete, drawn from he depths of the national temperament, if it does not find utterance in the all expressive "jai," whispered in the acme of costasy, accompanied by an neffably blissful glance. This is true of the so called girls of the people no less than of women of the higher classes" for grace and beauty know no difference between high and low and often bestow mon a poor. low, and often bestow upon a poor, barefooted, short skirted peasant girl (with her face in a kerchief tied under the chiu) the same enchanting form, the same magically attractive glance, as upon her more favored sister.—Wilhelm Singer in Harper's.

Sparrows and Blackbirds. Birds, notwi hetanding their attractiveness in plumage and sweetness in song, are many of them great thieves. When nest building they will steal the feathers out of the nests of other birds. feathers out of the nests of other birds, and are often ninch inclined to drive off other birds from a feeding ground even where there is abundance. This is especially true of one of our greatest favorites, the robin redbreast, who will peck and run after and drive away birds much bigger than himself.

Very different as the robin and the sparrow are in other things, they resemble each of ser in this. On an early spring morning when a little touch of frost still made the surface of the earth and this was the surface of the earth hard, I have seen a black bird on a lawn at last after great efforts extract a worm, and this was the signal for a crowd of sparrows, who, by dint of numbers, managed to drive away the blackbird and carry off the worm, to feed their own young lones, no doubt. Descendants of Some Noted Men.

It is not-worthy what a number of men eminent in the ern 1861-65 are now represented orly in the female, line of descent. Neityer Abraham Lincoln nor Jefferson Davis has a living grandson. Neither has Andrew Jackson, Thurlow Weed nor Horace Greeley. General Hancock's one son left behind him only a small daughter. There is no representative of General Scott's name. A singular parallel runs betwirk two Confederate generals, Stonewall Jackson and John Morgan, prince of raiders. Each died before the war ended, leaving one fair daughter. The two girls grew up, married happ ly, bore each a daughter and died soot after giving birth to a second child.—New York Press.
